Disclaimers

The opinions, findings, and conclusions expressed in these revised training materials are those of the authors and not necessarily those of the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) or the collaborating agencies and organizations. Mention of companies and product names does not constitute an endorsement by EPA or any other collaborating agency or organization.

The guidance provided in these training materials does not create any rights for defendants or responsibilities for EPA. Nothing contained in these training materials can be used as a defense in an enforcement action. The safety precautions and procedures described in these training materials are general in nature. Precise safety precautions required for any given situation depend upon and must be tailored to the specific circumstances and situations.

To determine official and exact legal requirements, readers of these training materials and participants in associated training classes are advised to review federal, state, and local statutes, regulations, and ordinances that are applicable to a specific situation. Nothing in these training materials is intended to modify any regulatory requirement for proper asbestos control or personnel safety.

EPA and the local and state regulatory agencies reserve the right to act at variance with the information in these training materials at any time without notice to the regulated community.

The Environmental Institute, NL Environmental Associates, Metro 4, Inc., Southeastern States Air Resource Managers, Inc., the member agencies of Metro 4 and SESARM, and the associated individuals supporting this project hereby expressly disclaim any direct or indirect liability arising from any action taken pursuant to the information in these training materials including, but not limited to, any alleged or actual personal health issue, injury, death, financial liability, economic loss, or other complication.
